U.S. AND ISRAELI NATIONAL SECURITY LAW: WHAT CAN EACH LEARN FROM THE OTHER?

Tuesday, March 27, 2012
1:00pm-3:00pm

American University Washington College of Law
4801 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Room 603

This panel builds on the new scholarship comparing U.S. and Israeli approaches to national security. Panelists will contrast American and Israeli law and policy with respect to extra-criminal detention, interrogation, surveillance, and more general privacy concerns arising out of governmental counterterrorism policies and the burgeoning jurisprudence concerning those efforts. The goal of the panel is to identify best practices and to help articulate the many ways in which the Israeli experience might provide helpful lessons for U.S. jurists and policymakers – and vice-versa.

Panelists:

Amichai Cohen, Associate Dean and Senior Lecturer of International Law, Ono Academic College Faculty of Law

Jennifer Daskal, Fellow, Center on National Security and the Law, Georgetown University Law Center

Laura Dickinson, Oswald Symister Colclough Research Professor of Law, George Washington University Law School

Hadar Harris, Executive Director, Center for Human Rights & Humanitarian Law, WCL

Moderator:

Steve Vladeck, Professor of Law and Associate Dean for Scholarship, WCL
